SUPERB STARLING
Brunbukig glansstare

A photograph of a Superb Starling (Lamprolaima melanochloros) perched on a thorny branch. The bird has a black head and neck with a prominent white eye-ring. Its back and wings are a deep, iridescent blue. The underparts are a rich, warm brown, with a white patch visible on the lower belly. The bird is facing left, looking alertly. The branch it sits on is light brown and covered in sharp, thin thorns. The background is a soft-focus mix of green foliage and brown branches, suggesting a natural, wooded habitat.
